Her figure wore a charming grace, Angelie was her mien; No vestige on her levely face Of discontent was seen.

A tender-mother's joy was she, A doting father's pride, And many bowed the lover's knee, And sought her for their bride.

And yet 't was all in vain, forsooth, That Cupid aimed his dart, Till first she met the graceful youth That wooed and won her heart

But soon, o'erwhelmed with doubts and fears The heart within her sank, When rumor reached her parents' ears, That to excess he drank.

They noted with a troubled sigh The changing hue that same, The downward glance and tearful eye At mention of his name.

And oft they strove with anxious care go prove 't would be her bone, Were she his destiny to share: Alas! they warned in vain !

For when he vowed for her sweet sake The tempting bowl to shun, She treasured up the words he spake, Believed, and was undone.

Five years have passed—the roses new Have faded from her check. And well the shade upon her brow Might years of suff'ring speak.

And why this sorrow of the heart? This cloud upon her brow? Why does the wayward tear drop start? Her hopes are blighted now!

And he who gained her youthful heart,

And vowed to make her blest-Twas he who simed the cruel dart That pierced her gentle breast.

Alas! upon that handsome face That won the maiden fair, Intemperance hath left its trace . Too deeply written there.

That voice whose music once could charm And quell her fearful doubts. Doth now her startled ear alarm With bacchanalian shouts.

Those matchless, most enchanting eyes, That once with luster shone, No trace of beauty in them lies, Now dull and heavy grown.

And that loved form she vainly deemed She ne'er could fancy less, That noblest and most graceful see ned, Now reels in drunkenness.

. Now poverty, with all its train Of bitter woes, has come, To bring a more affiletive pain And make more cheerless, home. For many wretched days alone,

With naught but sorrow near, She sits beside her dim heartstone And sheds the silent teur.

Ah! cruel is the heart, methinks, That wins from tender care A youthful, blooming maid, and links Her hopes to dark despair!

Who pities not her lot so drear-Her cheerless blighted life? Who could not shed for her a tear-The poor Inebriate's Wife?

Fever and Ague,

Fever and Ague,

from which mankind suffer over a large part of the globe, is the consequence of a diseased action in the system, induced by the poisonous miasm of vegetable decay. This exhabition is evolved by the action of solar heat on wet soil, and rises with the watery vapor from it. While the sun is below the hor'zon this vapor lingers near the earth's surface, and the virus is taken with it through the lungs into the blood. There it acts as an irritating poison on the internal viscera and excreting organs of the body. The liver becomes torpid and fails to secrete not only this virus, but also the bile from the blood. Both the virus and the bile accumulate in the circulation, and produce violent constitutional disorder. The spleen, the kidneys, and the stomach sympathize with the liver, and become disordered also. Finally, the instinct of our organism, as if in an attempt to expel the noxious infusion, concentrates the whole blood of the body in the internal excretories to force them to east it out. The blood leaves the surface, and rushes to the central organs with congestive violence. This is the CHILL. But in this effortifials. Then the FEVER follows, in which the blood leaves the central organs and rushes to the surface, as if in another effort to expel the irritating poison through that other great excretory—the skin. In this also it fails, and the system abandons the attempt exhausted, and waits for the recovery of strength to repeat the hopeloss effort another day. These are the fits or paroxysms of FEVER AND AGUE.
Such constitutional disorder will of course undermine the health if it is not removed.

We have labored to find, and have found, an antidote,

Ayer's Ague Cure,

which neutralizes this malarious poison in the blood, and stimulates the liver to expel it from the body. As it should, so it does care this afflicting disorder with perfect certainty. And it does more, or rather does what is of more service to those subject to this infection. If taken in season it expels it from the system as it is absorbed, and thus keeps those who use it free from its attacks; keeps the system in health although exposed to the disease. Consequently it not only cures, but protects from the great variety of affections which are induced by this malignant influence, such as Remittent Fever, Chill Fever, Dumb, or Masked Ague, Periodical Headache, or Bilious Headache, Bilious Fevers, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout. Blindness. Periodical Headache, or Bilious Headache, Bilious Fevers, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Blindness, Toothache, Earache, Catarrh, Asthma, Palpitations, Painful Affections of the Spleen, Hysterica, Colic, Paralysis, and Painful Affections of the Stomach and Bowels, all of which, when arising from this cause, will be found to assume more or less the intermittent type. This "Agur Curre" removes the cause of these derangements, and cures the disease.

This it accomplishes by stimulating the excretories to expel the virus from the system; and these organs by degrees become habited to do this these organs by degrees become habited to do this their office of their own accord. Hence arises what we term acclimatation. Time may accomplish the same end, but often life is not long enough, or is sacrificed in the attempt, while this "AGUE CWRR" does it at once, and with safety. We have great reason to believe this is a surer as well as safer remedy for the whole class of diseases which are caused by the miasmatic infection, than any other which has been discovered; and it has still another important advantage to the public, which is, that it is cheap as well as good.
